Mythic Journeys Program Participants

Michael Vannoy Adams, D. Phil., C.S.W., is a Jungian analyst doing pioneering work in the field of myth and story in archetypal psychology. He is the author of The Mythological Unconscious, The Multicultural Imagination: "Race," Color, and the Unconscious and (forthcoming in 2004) The Fantasy Principle: Psychoanalysis of the Imagination. He is a clinical associate professor at the NYU Postdoctoral Program in Psychotherapy and Psychoanalysis and a faculty member at the Object Relations Institute, the Blanton-Peale Graduate Institute and the New School University, where he was previously associate provost. He has been a Marshall Scholar in England and a Fulbright Senior Lecturer in India. He is the recipient of two Gradiva Awards from the National Association for the Advancement of Psychoanalysis.

Stephen Aizenstat, Ph.D., is the founding president of Pacifica Graduate Institute, a private graduate school offering masters and doctoral programs in psychology and mythological studies. He is a licensed clinical psychologist, a marriage and family therapist, and a credentialed public school teacher. His original research centers on a psychodynamic process of "tending the living image," particularly in the context of "dreamwork," and he has conducted dreamwork seminars for more than 25 years throughout the US, Europe and Asia. Aizenstadt has recorded "DreamTending," a six audiotape series released by Sounds True. His other publications include: "Dreams are Alive" in Depth Psychology: Meditations in the Field, edited by D. Slattery and L. Corbett, and "Nature Dreaming: Jungian Psychology and the World Unconscious" in T. Roszak, M. Gomes and A. Kanner (Eds.) Ecopsychology: Restoring the Earth, Healing the Mind.

Rebecca Armstrong, M. Div., was brought up in the legendary Armstrong folk family, where she learned the old stories, tunes and traditions from the fingers and voices of folks who kept them alive. Their home was a frequent resting place for the multitude of bards and balladeers who traveled through the Midwest, including Joseph Campbell, who became a close family friend. Following her interest in sacred stories and teaching to the spirit, Armstrong became an ordained Humanist Minister, receiving Masters degrees from the University of Chicago Divinity School and the Unitarian-Universalist seminary. She has worked with the Joseph Campbell Foundation since its inception in 1990, supporting the Mythological RoundTables around the world and writing the monthly Myth Letter for the Web site. She is one of the co-leaders of the annual Campbell week at Esalen.

Coleman Barks, Ph. D., in 1976, began translating the poems of Jelaluddin Rumi, a 13th-century Sufi mystic, a poet as famous in the Islamic world as Shakespeare is in the West. He has since become the primary translator bringing Rumi's poems into contemporary English, publishing 16 volumes of Rumi's poetry, including The Glance: Songs of Soul-Meeting and The Essential Rumi. A poet in his own right, a publisher and teacher of contemporary American poetry, he taught for 34 years at the University of Georgia, Athens, where he was named Poet and Professor Emeritus of English. Currently, he collaborates in performances with musicians, including members of the Paul Winter Consort. His work was featured in two PBS series with Bill Moyers, The Language of Life (1995) and The Sounds of Poetry (1999).

Peter S. Beagle is the award-winning author of The Last Unicorn, A Fine and Private Place, The Folk of the Air, The Innkeeper's Song and Tamsin. His books have been listed as some of the finest fantasy fiction ever created. He has also written short stories, screenplays, non-fiction and poetry, and recently finished the screenplay for a film-version of A Fine and Private Place. Beagle is an accomplished singer/songwriter who delights audiences in English, Yiddish, French and German.

Derek Beres is one of the leading sources of international music in America, through various journalistic endeavors (staff writer, Trace; music editor, Rattapallax; freelance journalist, The Village Voice, Urb, Relix, Blue, YRB) and Global Beat Fusion, his current book project documenting global electronica. His Mythika Electronika project traces the mythological roots of world musics, and he will be presenting the project at Mythic Journeys. He also performs Thai Massage Yoga at Atmananda Yoga in SoHo. As a DJ, he travels internationally with the GlobeSonic crew alongside Fabian Alsultany and Acidophilus and runs the weekly Kollektive party at Kush with Karsh Kale. In 2001 he co-founded EarthRise Arts with painter Craig Anthony Miller, producing numerous art and music events in and around New York. He spent two-and-a-half years as managing editor of Global Rhythm magazine, and his last play, Burning Trees, was seen at 2002' s Hip-Hop Theater Festival at the Nuyorican Poet' s Cafe. Beres was a featured journalist for the "Picks of the Week" segment on Metro TV' The Daily Beat and has launched a clothing line, Bhakti: Streetwear 4 Urban Yogis.

Ari Berk, Ph. D., is an author, poet, and Associate Professor of English Language and Literature at Central Michigan University where he teaches courses in mythology, American Indian literature, folklore and Medieval literature. The former student of Pulitzer Prize-winning writer N. Scott Momaday, Berk has created and directed literacy programs for disadvantaged youth, and (at the University of Arizona) helped to develop the first American Indian Studies doctoral program in the United States. His latest book The Runes of Elfland (a collaboration with international best-selling artist Brian Froud) creatively explores the otherworldly wonders of landscape and language.

Holly Black is a best-selling author of several contemporary fantasy novels for children and teens, including The Spiderwick Chronicles and Tithe: A Modern Faerie Tale. Her work has been translated into 27 languages worldwide. She is currently working on Valiant, a novel set both in and underneath New York.

Robert Bly has been called the father of the "men' s expressive movement." He authored Iron John, as well as 11 groundbreaking books of poetry, essays, and translations celebrating the power of myth, Indian ecstatic poetry, meditation and storytelling.

Jean Shinoda Bolen, M.D., is a psychiatrist, a Jungian analyst in private practice, a Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center and an internationally known lecturer. She is the author of Goddesses in Older Women: Archetypes in Women Over Fifty, The Millionth Circle, The Tao of Psychology, Goddesses in Everywoman: A New Psychology of Women, Gods in Everyman: A New Psychology of Men's Lives and Loves, Crossing to Avalon: A Woman's Midlife Pilgrimage, Ring of Power and Close to the Bone.

Bill Bridges is the co-creator of Holistic Design' Fading Suns universe and the developer for White Wolf' s Mage: The Ascension. He is the author of The Silver Crown and the Bone Gnawers, Stargazers and Wendigo Tribe Novels series for White Wolf. His works also include a staggering amount of books for a wide range of games: Fading Suns (Holistic Design), Werewolf, Vampire, Wraith, Changeling (all White Wolf), Pendragon (Chaosium) and Star Trek (Decipher). His computer game credits include: Noble Armada (Holistic Design), Dracula Unleashed (Viacom) and Star Trek Starfleet Academy (Interplay). He currently co-chairs the content committee for Mythic Journeys.

John Bridges, one of the most prolific artists in the gaming industry, has provided illustrations for a number of role-playing game companies including Last Unicorn Games, Chaosium, FASA, White Wolf and others. His work has also been featured in the collectible card games Rage, Jyhad and Mythos, and his comic book credits include work for Marvel Comics. He now works at Holistic Design Inc., where he is the lead visual designer and art director for the Fading Suns universe. He designed the Mythic Journeys and Mythic Imagination logos and related graphics.

Joseph Bruchac, as an author and poet, has appeared in over 500 books. His work emphasizes the spiritual balance and environmental concerns of his Native American (Abenaki) heritage. Founder of the Greenfield Press and a contributing editor to Parabola Magazine, Bruchac has received National Endowment of the Arts grants for his poetry and also to promote the development of prison writers - among many other foundation awards, including the National Education Association Human and Civil Rights Award in 2003. In addition to his extensive body of fictional and non-fictional works, Bruchac has gained considerable fame as a storyteller in Native American and other traditions. The Boy Who Lived With Bears and Other Iroquois Tales was recently re-released in soft cover as part of the Parabola Native American Storytime Series.

Mark Levon Byrne, Ph. D., has a doctorate in Religious Studies from Sydney University. He is the author of Myths of Manhood: The Hero in Jungian Literature, The Essence of Zen and the Web site www.mythoz.net. He works for two welfare agencies in Sydney, Australia, coordinating group work programs for men. He also teaches adult education courses in mythology and Jungian psychology; has a private practice as a Jungian psychotherapist; and leads educational tours to Cambodia. His specialty is modern Australian mythology.

Guy Corneau, M. Ed., is an internationally recognized Jungian psychoanalyst and has published several books in French, three of which have been translated into English: Absent Fathers, Lost Sons (1991, Shambhala Publications) and Lessons in Love: The Transformation of Spirit Through Intimacy (1999, Henry Holt). Healing the Heart: Making Sense of Suffering will be published in a near future. Over the past 15 years, Guy has given numerous lectures and workshops throughout the world. In 1997, together with a group of artists and therapists under the banner of Productions Cœur.com, he created and subsequently led innovative seminars to heal the heart through psychological understanding and creative expression. Guy co-founded the Cercle C.G. Jung de Montréal (1975) and founded Réseau Hommes Québec (1992).

He has written more than 250 journal articles and 13 books, including The Morphology of North American Indian Folktales, Holy Writ as Oral Lit: The Bible as Folklore and Fables of the Ancients: Folklore in the Qur'an. He edited Sacred Narrative: Readings in the Theory of Myth and The Flood Myth.

Carolyn Dunn is a Native American journalist, teacher, fiction writer, anthology editor, musician, catechist and poet who has recently been doing fascinating research into "deer women" stories, exploring how they relate to women' s lives today. She is author of two books of poetry Outfoxing Coyote (2002) and Hidden Creek Journal (2000) as well as the coeditor of the anthologies Through The Eye of The Deer (1999) and Hozho: Walking In Beauty.

Susan Eldridge is a dancer, choreographer, and garden designer who embraces the joy of reality as a moving process. She is engaged in the ongoing discipline of creating and training new realities through dance and teaching. She full appreciates that reality isn't a place, it's a sliding scale of perspectives in which the individual is empowered by movement from one reality to another. Along with Debora Ott, Eldridge will use the hero's journey as a template for a dance version of the tale of Little Red Riding Hood at Mythic Journeys. The two will lead a workshop addressing questions about the nature of Little Red Riding Hood as a cautionary tale, examining current and mythic roles for women, and exploring the crucial boundaries between self and progeny.

Emerald Rose is a four-man Celtic-theme folk rock band with a rich, original sound drawn from diverse influences, from Jethro Tull to the Chieftains. Blending chorus vocals, pennywhistle, world percussion and driving guitars and bass, their music ranges from traditional jigs and reels to original folk rock and pop numbers. Many of the band' s musical themes draw from Celtic myth and legend, but the style is modern, upbeat and accessible. Members of Emerald Rose, along with Kelly K. Stewart, are chairing the Mythic Journeys performance committee.

Heinz Insu Fenkl works as a director of the Interstitial Studies Institute and the Creative Writing Program at the State University of New York. Ellen Hemphill is the artistic director, managing director, and co-founder of Archipelago Theatre Company in Chapel Hill, North Carolina. She is also a director, singer, performer, writer, teacher, a member of both the Duke Theatre Studies Department since 1993 and the Roy Hart Theatre of France. Hemphill and Nor Hall have collaborated on writing and creating theatre pieces based on myth, archetype and stories that are universal in nature. Hemphill also teaches "voice and gesture" where one can work on the natural/unique voice and their own world of movement towards artistic expression.

James Hillman, Ph.D., the father of archetypal psychology, is the author of Healing Fiction, The Soul's Code, Revisioning Psychology and The Dream and the Underworld. Hillman is one of the leading thinkers in the fields of myth and psychology today. He is also co-editor, along with Michael Meade and Robert Bly, of the poetry anthology The Rag and Bone Shop of the Heart. Hillman is one of the world's leading thinkers in the fields of myth, psychology and psychological activism. This is a rare opportunity to listen to one of the true pioneering giants in this field.

Janis Ian' s career exploded in 1966, at the age of 15, with the release of her controversial tale of teenage interracial love, "Society' s Child." The self-penned song topped the charts and created a storm of controversy that featured Ian on The Tonight Show and in Life, Time and Newsweek. Since then, she has released 18 albums and garnered Grammy nominations, awards, and gold and platinum sales. Her songs have been recorded by superstars, and she has written music for films and television. In the early 80' s, Ian took time off to study acting with Stella Adler and ballet with Dora Krannig of the Royal Ballet. In 2003, Ian added author to her long list of accomplishments with the publication of her first book project, an anthology titled Stars: Stories Based on the Lyrics of Janis Ian. Ian's latest project is an unprecedented look into the world of recording called The Making of a CD, a real-time walk-through of the creative process that will be featured on her Web site in six installments. Ian writes a monthly column for Performing Songwriter magazine, was monthly columnist for five years for The Advocate, lectures at Berklee College, Boston, and has guest-lectured at various other institutions and schools.

Parker Johnson is the founder of Foxfire Studios and lead singer of rock band, One Machine. He is also the founder of The Ladder Foundation, which makes charitable contributions to individuals and non-profit organizations serving youth, leadership development, and the cultural arts. He is the composer of The Ladder, a rock opera based on an individual's experience of the works of Joseph Campbell which he'll be presenting in complete form at Mythic Journeys. In addition to singing and writing new material, Johnson is developing a screenplay for the story of The Ladder to become an experiential music-based film. Through the medium of mindful and provocative multi-media entertainment, it is his hope and aim to further the core messages and teachings of Professor Campbell and Dr. Jung to an entirely new audience.

Scarlet Kinney of the Standing Bear Center for Shamanic Studies, is an artist, writer and mythologist. She earned her bachelor's degree in studio art at Goddard College, Plainfield, VT, and her master's in mythological studies with an emphasis on depth psychology at Pacifica Graduate Institute, Carpinteria, Calif. Kinney studied the women's shamanic ways of the Iroquois Nation with a Mohawk shaman woman for three years, and founded The Standing Bear Center for Shamanic Studies in 1994. The Center offers shamanic workshops, individual shamanic counseling, and an apprentice training program leading to certification as a Shamanic Counselor, Kinney Method. Kinney is presently working on two books that tell her story. "The Stone Heart Turtle People," the last chapter in one of those books, is a shamanic healing myth that Kinney tells to the accompaniment of shamanic drumming, singing and chanting. She and her women's shamanic drumming group, The Turtle Mountain Drummers, will perform The Stone Heart Turtle People at Mythic Journeys.

Sheri Kling is an Atlanta-based singer/songwriter whose music resonates with authenticity. Her compositions are heart-rooted and spirit-seeking. Each song is another way of looking at what is real, what is true and what invites us all into a more passionate and well-lived life. Her solo CD is Let It Unfold.

Joseph Kulin publishes Parabola, the Magazine of Myth, Tradition and the Search for Meaning, as well as Parabola Books, Audios and Videos. He is the founder and producer of the "Cinema of the Spirit" Film and Video Festival, now in its fifth year. He acquired distribution rights along with Mystic Fire for the immensely popular PBS series, Joseph Campbell and the Power of Myth with Bill Moyers. He has produced an audio and book series of Native American stories for children and is currently developing a world myth and story program for public radio. He co-edited Gathering Sparks, a collection of interviews with Joseph Campbell, Marion Woodman, Peter Brook, Thomas Berry, Oliver Sacks, Elie Wiesel, H.H. the Dalai Lama and others. Kulin produced a biography of the Jungian writer Helen M. Luke, which has aired on public television. He is currently writing a modern fairy tale for children, "The Story of Princess Ican."

Ellen Kushner applies her talents as writer, producer and storyteller to host WGBH Radio's award-winning series Sound & Spirit, which Bill Moyers calls "the best program on public radio, bar none." She is the author of mythic fantasy novels Swordspoint: A Melodrama of Manners, The Fall of the Kings (with Delia Sherman), and Thomas the Rhymer. Her short fiction appears in various anthologies, including The World's Best Fantasy and Horror. She performs on stage, and is sought after as a teacher and public speaker.

Stephen and Robin Larsen are co-directors of the Center for Symbolic Studies in New Paltz, New York, where they focus on personal mythology, shamanism and the creative imagination. Stephen and Robin collaborated on A Fire in the Mind, Joseph Campbell's biography, and A Fashioning of Angels: Partnership as Spiritual Practice. In addition, Stephen is the author of The Mythic Imagination and The Shaman's Doorway.

Alan Lee is well known for his paintings in the book Faeries (along with Brian Froud) as well as his illustrated editions of J.R.R. Tolkien's The Hobbit and The Lord of the Rings. He was the principal designer of the look and feel of Peter Jackson's film version of The Lord of the Rings. If you look closely, you'll see Lee as one of the nine kings of men given a ring by Sauron at the beginning of the film version of The Fellowship of the Ring. However, to the best of our knowledge, he is not a Ring Wraith.

Virginia Lee is the sculptor for the art department of The Lord of the Rings films and creator of the Sideshow/Weta Collectibles wall-plaque scenes.

Mickey Lemle has been making feature films, television series and documentary specials since 1971. In 1977 he founded Lemle Pictures, Inc. Lemle served in the U.S. Peace Corps in Nepal and currently holds the position of Chairman of the Board of the Tibet Fund. His award-winning documentaries include Media Probes, The Other Side of the Moon, Planet Earth, Compassion in Exile: The Story of the 14th Dalai Lama, Hasten Slowly: The Journey of Sir Laurens Van Der Post and Ram Dass: Fierce Grace. Lemle's other honors include the 1976 American Film Festival Blue Ribbon for A Woman's Place is in the House, a half-hour portrait of Massachusetts State Representative Elaine Noble, and an Emmy nomination for editing P.O.W. and JIM, two programs in the Religious America series. He also directed, shot and edited segments of the Emmy Award-winning series, ZOOM, and the Peabody Award-winning series, Eye-To-Eye.

Scott Livengood is president/CEO of Krispy Kreme Doughnut Corporation. In addition to leading the company to astonishing success, he uses a degree in industrial relations and psychology to employ mythology as a strong foundation for his successful company and his personal philosophy. He developed the Krispy Kreme "mythodology" and runs the company based on the ideas in Joseph Campbell's The Hero With a Thousand Faces.

Terry Lupton is a singer/songwriter well known for his stirring song based on Black Elk Speaks that uses an old cylinder of John Niehart himself speaking of "the ineffable joy of being."

Maggie Macary, M. A., is a writer and speaker who leads workshops on mythological themes, mentors to discover and transform with personal and archetypal myth. She leads online courses and explores new ways to develop curriculum using interactive media.

Mary Elizabeth Marlow is a ritualist, intuitive counselor, art therapist and the author of Jumping Mouse: a Story about Inner Trust, Handbook for the Emerging Woman: Awakening the Unlimited Power of the Feminine Spirit and co-author with Joseph Rael of Beautiful Painted Arrow of Being and Vibration. She lectures, leads workshops using storytelling around the world and is working on a book about dreams which she hopes will be released in time for the Mythic Journeys conference.

Michaela Foster Marsh sings of love and loss, healing and redemption, salvation and sex. The Scottish singer/songwriter living in Ottawa, Canada, who may have created a new genre of music -- torch folk. The lyrics on her debut album Fairytales and the Death of Innocence are steeped in mythology and rich with raw emotion. They reach through the entire spectrum of human experience from the sacred to the profane. While she's been compared to everyone from Tori Amos to Loreena McKennitt, Foster Marsh seems to have created a genre all her own. Torch folk? Whatever you call it, don't miss her.

John and Caitlin Matthews are respected Celtic scholars and authors who share an interest in myth, religion, music, mysticism and art. They have a special focus on Celtic Myth, Western Mystery Traditions, art, poetry and music. Some of John's many books include a new translation of Mallory's Le Morte de Arthur. Some of Caitlin's many volumes include Mabon and the Mysteries of Britain, Arthur and the Sovereignty of Britain, and Celtic Love. Together, they have authored over 70 books, including The Western Way and Hallowquest, a guide to the Arthurian Tarot deck they developed.

Theresa Coimbra McCaskey, as a psychologist in Brazil, has integrated the work of C.G. Jung, Joseph Campbell and Karfried Graf Durkheim. She develops therapeutic activities with children and adolescents at risk, through mythology, dreams, art and dance. She belongs to the Joseph Campbell Foundation and leads a Mythological Round Table in Brasilia.

Gerald McDermott was told by a friend, one Joseph Campbell, that he should spend his time painting and writing. Now, he is an award winning artist and author of numerous books and films for children, three of which have won the coveted Caldecott honor award – Anansi The Spider: A Tale of the Ashanti; Arrow To The Sun: A Tale from the Pueblo; and Raven: A Trickster Tale from the Pacific Northwest. Joseph Campbell served as the consultant on four of McDermott's early films, and the two began a friendship that extended over many years. Campbell was instrumental in making this gifted artist aware of the psychological depths of mythology and the possibilities of integrating cultural and archetypal symbols into his art. In addition to being the first Fellow of the Joseph Campbell Foundation, McDermott is also a co-leader at the annual Mythological Toolbox at Esalen Institute in Big Sur, California.

She trained in New York City with Lee Strasberg and is a graduate of Circle in the Square Theatre School. She is also an alumni of Emerson College in Boston and New York University. Mitchell teaches 'Method' acting in San Francisco at The Actors Center of San Francisco. She will be performing her one-woman adaptation of Gitta Mallasz' Talking With Angels at Mythic Journeys.

R. B. Morris is a poet who writes emotionally intense songs full of ideas and unexpected word-play and sings them in arrangements that emphasize the rhythmic interchange between words and music. There' s enough country to recall literate writers like Kris Kristofferson, but there' s enough roots rock and blues in his music to make you think twice before saying "singer-songwriter." He played his way through the clubs and honky tonks of the mountains, first with bands with old-time fiddlers and then later with groups that rocked. Later on the road west to San Francisco, the patron city of the Beats, he moved in the circles that surrounded poet Gregory Corso and made friends with Kerouac biographer Gerry Nicosia. Back in Knoxville, Morris focused on writing, performing his poetry, and editing the literary magazine, Hard Knoxville Review, which attracted an avant-garde cult following in this country and in Europe. He also wrote a one-man play, The Man Who Lives Here Is Loony, about the turbulent life of writer James Agee.

Maureen Murdock, M.A., is a family therapist and educational consultant. She was once challenged by Joseph Campbell himself to find the hero's journey for women. The result? The books Spinning Inward: Using Guided Imagery with Children for Learning, Creativity, and Relaxation; Creativity, & Relaxation, The Heroine's Journey, Fathers' Daughters: Transforming the Father-Daughter Relationship and The Heroine's Journey Workbook.

Rabbi Yossi New is the spiritual leader at temple Beth Tefillah in Atlanta, Georgia, and he is an expert on the Kabbalah. Born and raised in Melbourne, Australia, Rabbi New' s religious education includes studies at Keren B' Yavneh Yeshiva in Israel and the Rabbinical College of Canada in Montreal. He was ordained in 1981 at Central Lubavitch Yeshiva in Brooklyn, New York. His post-rabbinic work was completed at the Kollel' s Halachic Research Program in Brooklyn. Rabbi New also serves as the Director of Chabad of Georgia.

Carrie Newcomer has led songwriting and creative writing workshops across the country. Coming from a rich and creative discipline, Carrie has nine critically acclaimed recordings, has performed throughout the USA, Europe and Alaska, and has earned a bachelor's degree in fine art and education. She facilitates short and extended workshops and has been an artist in residence within the public schools, at colleges and at various spiritual retreat centers.

Steve Nygren, former owner of the Pleasant Peasant Restaurant chain, and gentleman farmer, is the inspiration behind both the Serenbe Bed & Breakfast and the environmentally protected, 900-acre Serenbe Community. Nygren has fostered the development of ecologically sound design philosophies to build eclectic hamlets and villages surrounded by vast acreage of untouched woodland. These neighborhoods appeal to artists, writers, farmers and such, business people, single people, families, and empty-nesters. This is the creation of a real community, where people are drawn together over gardening, over cooking, over books, over art, over ideas, and yes, even over back fences. They say that if you want to change the world, you should start in your own backyard. If that's so, then Serenbe is quite a beginning. Or maybe a respectful nod to times gone by.

Joyce Carol Oates told stories instinctively as a small child. After receiving the gift of a typewriter at age 14, she began consciously training herself. Success came early: while attending Syracuse University on scholarship, she won the coveted Mademoiselle fiction contest. Between 1968 and 1978, Oates taught at the University of Windsor in Canada, where she published new books at the rate of two or three per year. Though still in her 30s, Oates had become one of the most respected and honored writers in the United States. She now teaches in Princeton University' s creative writing program. Oates's work ranges from the gothic to ambitious family chronicles (You Must Remember This, Because It Is Bitter, and Because It Is My Heart) and novels of female experience (Solstice, Marya: A Life). The dramatic trajectory of Oates' s career suggests a feminist, literary version of the mythic pursuit and achievement of the American dream. Yet Oates' s daily routine of teaching and writing has changed very little, and her commitment to literature as a transcendent human activity remains steadfast.

Debora Ott is a writer, editor, and arts management consultant whose abiding passion is to build community through a shared appreciation of the creative process. The founder of Just Buffalo Literary Center, Inc., in Buffalo, New York, she accepted the prestigious New York State Governor's Award for Excellence in the Arts in 1997. She is the author of About Face: A Guide to Founder Transition which was published by the New York State Council on the Arts. Along with Susan Eldridge, Debora will use the hero's journey as a template for a dance version of the tale of Little Red Riding Hood at Mythic Journeys. The two will lead a workshop addressing questions about the nature of Little Red Riding Hood as a cautionary tale, examining current and mythic roles for women, and exploring the crucial boundaries between self and progeny.

Ginette Paris, Ph. D., is the renowned feminist psychologist and author of Pagan Meditations: the Worlds of Aphrodite, Artemis, and Hestia; Pagan Grace: Dionysus and Hermes; and Goddess Memory in Daily Life. She is also a teacher at the Pacifica Graduate Institute.

Fiona Passantino is an author, educator and design consultant who created The Big Myth Web site, a new experimental learning module designed for use in primary school classrooms. The Big Myth is a sociology textbook for the comparative study of world creation mythology. The myths are told using Flash animation and are accompanied by an overview of the culture, the pantheon of the gods and a series of exercises based on that culture. Her creative and innovative design company, Distant Train, develops online educational software with a decidedly mythic perspective.

Laurie L. Patton, Ph. D., is Winship Distinguished Research Professor in the Humanities and Chairperson for the Department of Religion of Emory University. She earned her bachelor's degree from Harvard University and her doctorate from the University of Chicago. Her interests are in the interpretation of early Indian ritual and narrative, comparative mythology and literary theory in the study of religion. She is the author/editor of Authority, Anxiety, and Canon: Essays in Vedic Interpretation, Myth as Argument: The Brhaddevata as Canonical Commentary, Myth and Method (with Wendy Doniger), Jewels of Authority: Women and Text in the Hindu Tradition, Toward a Comparative Philosophy of Religions, Bringing the Gods to Mind, The Indo-Aryan Controversy: Evidence and Evocation (forthcoming with Edwin Bryant), Fire's Goal: Poems from a Hindu Year and a soon-to-be-published translation of the Bhagavad Gita.

Carol S. Pearson, Ph. D. is the acclaimed author of The Hero Within, Magic At Work: Camelot, Creative Leadership and Everyday Miracles and The Hero and The Outlaw. An expert at applying mythic principles to life, work, and business, she is a sought-after consultant, teacher and workshop leader.

Kevin Peer has been sharing stories through the making of documentary films for over 20 years. His experience includes staff directing positions for both National Geographic Television and the National Park Service. The subjects explored in his films have ranged from Zen archery to the nuclear testing program in the Bikini Atoll, and from the wilderness of Alaska to the Wodaabe tribe of Niger, West Africa. His work has been seen by audiences around the world and has garnered over 40 national and international film festival awards. In addition to making films, Peer teaches a unique approach to documentary filmmaking that combines the development of production skills with a conscious and passionate engagement of one's creative, psychological and spiritual life. He is founder and director of the Institute for Sacred Cinema. Peer is currently working on the film In Search of the Tree of Life, a feature-length documentary exploring the mythic and spiritual dimensions of humankind's relationship with trees and forests.

Faye Ringel, Ph. D., is professor of humanities at the United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, CT. Her book, Patterns of the Hero and the Quest (Brown University, 1979), was one of the first to analyze Tolkien in the light of Campbell's monomyth, placing Tolkien in the context of Medieval epic and romance. Her articles on medievalism, contemporary legends, the Gothic, ballads, science fiction and fantasy have appeared in journals and edited collections. Her book, New England's Gothic Literature: History and Folklore of the Supernatural (1995) explores the persistence and transformation of European Gothic myths in New England. She was invited to speak on American Gothic at the 2004 European Association for American Studies conference in Prague. This summer, she will be a visiting scholar in the NEH Summer Institute at Texas A&M University at Commerce on "Tolkien: From Beowulf to Postmodernism." She is also a performer and teacher of traditional music with a CD recording, Hot Chestnuts: Old Songs, Endearing Charms.

Gayle Ross is a direct descendant of John Ross, chief of the Cherokee nation during the infamous "Trail of Tears" relocation. Through stories she learned from her grandmother, Ross has been telling her people's myths and legends at schools, colleges, and festivals across the United States. Ross is a master storyteller who can provoke laughter with trickster stories (How Rabbit Tricked Otter and Other Cherokee Trickster Stories) or move listeners to tears with haunting Cherokee creation myths. The National Council of Traditional Arts has included Ross in two tours, and she was chosen by Vice President Al Gore, later the White House, the Kennedy Center and the Library of Congress to present the Native American tale. In 1995, Ross was featured in a two-hour segment of the documentary How The West Was Won on Discovery Channel. Ross' voice may be heard telling stories on National Public Radio programs such as Living On The Earth and Mountain Stage.

Cathleen Rountree is a writer and writing consultant, film analyst and scholar, visual artist and photographer, educator and cultural mythologist. She is the best-selling author of eight books including The Writer's Mentor: A Guide to Putting Passion On Paper and her seminal five-volume series on women's life stages. Her lifelong passion for cinema evolved into writing film analyses for the San Francisco International Film Festival, The San Francisco Jung Institute Library Journal, The Journal of Psycho-social Culture (England), and MS. Magazine. Her next book about how to "read" a film for deeper meaning and the transformative nature of movies will be published in 2005. As a doctoral Candidate at Pacifica Graduate Institute, her dissertation is entitled Technicians of Imagination: Auteur Film Directors as Contemporary Shamans. Rountree lectures throughout the United States at conferences and to Jungian groups and teaches Cinema Studies and Creative Writing at the University of California, Santa Cruz, and the UCLA Writers' Program. Many of her presentations are illustrated with film clips.

Eric Saperston loaded up a 1971 VW bus, intending to follow the Grateful Dead. When the forever-missed Jerry Garcia passed away, Eric and his band of adventurers decided to travel the country, asking some of the most important people around out for a cup of coffee. For example? The gang met with former president Jimmy Carter, architect John Portman (who introduced them to the works of Joseph Campbell), Mythic Journeys guest Betty Sue Flowers, and many, many more. Saperston and his friends even met an unexpected mentor: one Henry Winkler. That's right, the Fonz himself was their Yoda. All in all, Saperston and the others conducted some 376 interviews with everyone from college students to wise people. The result of their 1,825-day odyssey is an incredible hero's journey of discovery—and an acclaimed independent film, The Journey. Saperston will screen the film at Mythic Journeys and tell us all about his adventures on the road. As Saperston says, sometimes you take the journey, and sometimes the journey takes you.

Gregory A. Schrempf, Ph. D., is associate professor of folklore and co-director of the graduate program in Mythology Studies at Indiana University where he teaches myth, cosmology and worldview, comparative mythology, and the history of ideas. He is the author of Magical Arrows: The Maori, the Greeks, and the Folklore of the Universe (New Directions in Anthropological Writing) and editor (along with Dr. William Hansen) of Myth: A New Symposium. He is currently completing a new book on mythologizing in popular science writing.

Robert Segal, Ph. D., specializes in theories of myth, religion and Gnosticism. He is the author of The Poimandres as Myth, Religion and the Social Sciences, Explaining and Interpreting Religion, Joseph Campbell, and Theorizing about Myth. He is the editor of The Gnostic Jung, The Allure of Gnosticism, The Myth and Ritual Theory, and Hero Myth Reader. Dr. Segal is professor of theories of religion at the University of Lancaster, UK.

Karen Shaffer is an arts/education/cultural events advocate and promoter (ArtsHouse), as well as partner in Green Man Press. After graduating from the University of Tennessee, she worked for a Madison Avenue ad agency in NYC, then left to become a proofreader/editor/secretary/personal assistant for a variety of publishers and authors. Before a serious car accident in 1998, Karen served in an editorial capacity for the local arts magazine and worked tirelessly to convert an old school building into a regional arts center, now an Affiliate of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. She has a goal to return to her mandolin playing as medical research for spinal cord injuries progresses (thank you, Christopher Reeve). For three years, Karen co-produced the Good Goddess Arts Exhibition, a month-long series of poetry, music and arts events celebrating Women' s History Month, and is active on the Board of Directors for the Appalachian Independence Center, an organization working for people with disabilities. Karen also promotes the work of the Appalachian Women' s Alliance. With her husband Charles Vess, she is co-curator of "Ancient Spirit, Modern Voice: The Mythic Journeys Art Exhibition."

Cosy Sheridan has gone from Carnegie Hall to the Dr Demento Show to the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and almost everywhere in between. She has garnered top honors from the country' s most prestigious songwriting contests: The Kerrville Folk Festival' s NewFolk Award, The Telluride Bluegrass Festival' s Troubadour Award and the Falcon Ridge Folk Festival Songwriting Showcase Award. She has five CDs on the Waterbug and WindRiver/Folk Era record labels. Her song, "Too Much Time", was included on the critically acclaimed Putamayo compilation CD, Shelter in 1994. She has taught songwriting at The Swannanoa Gathering in Asheville for the past three summers. Two of her articles for Acoustic Guitar Magazine were included in the instructional book, Performing Acoustic Music. Sheridan travels with her yoga mat but without her gallbladder and will talk about anything on stage, from body piercing to a more user-friendly Barbie Doll, the loneliness of her elderly neighbor, or how small and humble things in life, like ants, can sew your heart back together.

Delia Sherman, Ph. D., a member of the Endicott Studio for the Mythic Arts, is an editor and the award-winning author of numerous mythic short stories, the young adult novel The Freedom Maze, and the novels Through a Brazen Mirror and The Porcelain Dove. She is the co-author of The Fall of the Kings.

Bradd Shore, Ph. D., is a cultural anthropologist, author, professor and the director of the Center for Myth and Ritual in American Life (MARIAL) at Emory University. An insightful, challenging, and charismatic speaker, Dr. Shore is the author of Culture in Mind: Cognition, Culture, and the Problem of Meaning, Sala'llua, and What Culture Means, How Culture Means. He has a special interest in the idea of authenticity.

Paula Silver is president of Beyond The Box, a creative entertainment marketing and production company specializing in media that matters. Her latest breakthrough success, My Big Fat Greek Wedding, grossed over $250 million and changed the rules of marketing. Silver has more than 20 years experience in developing and marketing motion pictures. At Disney she created the award-winning marketing campaign for Mr. Holland' s Opus. Silver has worked closely with all the major Hollywood studios developing the marketing campaigns for such major hits as: Alien, Tootsie, Ghostbusters, The Big Chill, Gandhi, Body Heat, Dirty Dancing, and even renamed the motion picture Fatal Attraction. As President of Marketing and Publicity at Columbia Pictures Worldwide, Silver oversaw the development of marketing campaigns for over 18 major motion pictures a year including such hits as Boyz 'n the Hood, Dracula, Prince of Tides and A League of Their Own. We're delighted that Silver is bringing her expertise, vision and her history of successfully uniting the Hollywood community with socially conscious projects to Mythic Journeys.

Dennis Patrick Slattery, Ph. D., is a member of the Core Faculty in Mythological Studies, Pacifica Graduate Institute, the author of six books, as well as more than 200 articles and reviews that focus on the confluence of culture, spirit, soul, myth and poetics. He lectures and offers workshops to a variety of Jungian groups in the United States and Canada.

Huston Smith, Ph.D., is Thomas J. Watson Professor of Religion and Distinguished Adjunct Professor of Philosophy, Emeritus, Syracuse University. For 15 years, he was Professor of Philosophy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and for a decade before that he taught at Washington University in St. Louis. Most recently he has served as Visiting Professor of Religious Studies, University of California, Berkeley. Holder of 12 honorary degrees, Smith' s 14 books include The World's Religions, which has sold over 2.5 million copies, and Why Religion Matters, which won the Wilbur Award for the best book on religion published in 2001. In 1996, Bill Moyers devoted a five-part PBS special to his life and work. His film documentaries on Hinduism, Tibetan Buddhism, and Sufism have all won international awards, and The Journal of Ethnomusicology lauded his discovery of Tibetan multiphonic chanting as "an important landmark in the study of music." Says Bill Moyers, "America' s religious landscape is changing before our eyes, and no one has done more to prepare us for the new religious reality than Huston Smith."

Richard Smoley is a graduate of Harvard College and Oxford University. He is the former editor of Gnosis magazine and author of Inner Christianity: A Guide to the Esoteric Tradition and, along with Jay Kinney, Hidden Wisdom: A Guide to the Western Inner Traditions.

Midori Snyder has published six acclaimed books of fiction for adults including a lyrical adult fairy tale titled Soulstring; three "imaginary world" novels known as the Oran Trilogy: New Moon, Sadar's Keep, Beldane's Fire; and The Flight of Michael McBride. The Innamorati, a complex, robust, and sensual tale drawing upon Italian and early Roman legends, mask-making, and the theater of the Commedia dell' Arte, won the Mythopoeic Award for Novel of the Year. She followed this book up with a contemporary fantasy for younger readers titled Hannah's Garden, an enchanting tale of music and faeries set in the rural Midwest. Her short fiction has been published in numerous anthologies. Her essay "The Monkey Girl" appeared in Mirror, Mirror on the Wall: Women Writers Explore Their Favorite Fairy Tales. In addition to writing, Snyder makes masks for theater and friends at Carnival, plays classical mandolin (and Celtic folk music after enough whiskey), and trains regularly in Shotokan karate. The latter disciplines are evident in her popular tales for the Borderland "punk fantasy" series ("Demon," "Alison Gross," and "Dragon Child").

Christopher A. Snyder, Ph. D., works as chair for the Department of History and Politics at Marymount University in Virginia. He earned his doctorate in medieval history from Emory University and taught at Emory and the College of William and Mary. Snyder is the author of several books, including The World of King Arthur. He is a lecturer at the Smithsonian Institution and has appeared on BBC-TV and The Learning Channel. He has special interest in Arthurian and Celtic lore and history.

Sobonfu Somé, author and teacher and one of the foremost voices in African spirituality to come to west, says that: "There is a deep longing among people in the West to connect with something bigger - with community and spirit. People know there is something missing in there lives, and believe that the rituals and ancient ways of the village offer some answers." Somé, whose name means "keeper of the rituals" travels the world on a healing mission sharing the rich spiritual life, ritual and culture of her native land, Burkina Faso, which ranks as one of the world' s poorest countries yet one of the richest in spiritual life and custom. Somé has written two books, The Spirit of Intimacy and Welcoming Spirit Home, her newest offering which draws on rituals and practices involving community, birth miscarriage and children. Filled with grace and eloquence, Somé possesses a charm and modesty that enables her to touch her audience deeply. Her message about the importance of spirit, community and ritual in our lives rings with an intuitive power and truth that Alice Walker has said "can help us put together so many things that our modern western world has broken."

Greg Stafford is a practicing mythologist best known for his work in roleplaying games and shamanism. He became a mythologist at age 12 when, during an illness, the inhabitants of a book hallucinated to him, he replied and a life-long conversation began. He is world renowned for his inspirational roleplaying games, especially King Arthur Pendragon, RuneQuest and the latest, HeroQuest. He has been the publisher of the professional magazine Shaman's Drum for twenty years. He practices shamanism "because I have no choice," leading ceremonies, visionquests, sweat lodge ceremonies and educational workshops. He currently lives in Mexico with his wife, Suzanne.

Kelly K. Stewart is a talented performer and respected teacher of traditional Celtic harp. Educated both at the University of Georgia and in Wales, she blends an extensive knowledge of ethnomusicology with the related history and folklore to create masterful historical, traditional and Celtic music. She is currently pursuing a master's degree in triple harp performance and traditional music history with the University of North Wales. She studied with some of the great harpists of the time and, as a result, took her first professional championship at the age of 16. Stewart's specialty is Celtic music, her lilting soprano providing the English, Gaelic or Welsh lyrics to many of the traditional songs from Scotland, Ireland, Wales and the Isle of Man. She is equally at home with classical or baroque music, performed on period instruments.

C.W. Sullivan III, Ph. D., is University Distinguished Research Professor of English at East Carolina University and a full member of the Welsh Academy. He is the author of Welsh Celtic Myth in Modern Fantasy (1989) and editor of The Mabinogi: A Book of Essays (1996), six other books of essays, and the Children's Folklore Review. He is a past president of the International Association for the Fantastic in the Arts. His articles on mythology, folklore, fantasy and science fiction have appeared in a variety of anthologies and journals. His most recent book, Fenian Diary: Denis B. Cashman on Board the Hougoumont, 1867-1868, was published by Wolfhound Press, Dublin, in the summer of 2001.

Ulla Suokko, a New York City-based concert artist, enjoys a versatile international career sharing the magic of music, poetry and stories throughout the world. Active both as a soloist and chamber musician, she has been featured in some of New York City's most prestigious concert venues. Performing regularly with some of New York's best contemporary music ensembles, she is a member of Continuum® and a regular flutist for Columbia University's Composers' Concerts. Suokko was selected as the 2002 Finlandia Foundation Performer of the Year 2002, bringing her to audiences nationwide. She leads the listener on a musical and poetic exploration of humanity, building a bridge between traditions and contemporary culture. Complementing her musical work, she gives workshops on peak performance, stress release, relaxation techniques, listening, communicating and improvisation, as well as on the healing and transformational power of music. Her improvised, soothing solo flute CD, Bridge of Light, is an invocation for peace, balance, harmony and love.

Chief Jake Swamp (Wolf Clan of the Mohawk Nation, Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy) is a respected spiritual leader who has participated in crucial Native American struggles, including the 1970 takeover of the Bureau of Indian Affairs office in Washington, D.C., settlement talks after Wounded Knee occupation, and the 1978 Longest Walk. He has represented Indian peoples in international forums including the United Nations. For the past two decades, Chief Swamp had traveled extensively, planting trees for peace and spreading a powerful message of peace and environmental education. Chief Swamp is also the author of Giving Thanks: A Native American Good Morning Message, winner of the 1998 Media Award, and producer of Parabola Audio's The Peacemaker's Journey: How the Great Law of Peace Came to the Original Five Nations.

Three Weird Sisters are Gwen Knighton (Master Class Scottish wire harp), Brenda Sutton (award-winning singer/songwriter on guitar and bodhrán), and Teresa Powell (3/4 upright bass), who weave tight harmonies with mythic themes. These "sisters by choice," if not blood, are dynamic, engaging performers who embrace topics ranging from rites of passage to Arthurian legend to computer romance. The Sisters' successful CD, Rite the First Time, debuted in 2001 and their next CD, Hair of the Frog, is slated for release in April 2004.

Robert Walter is executive director of the Joseph Campbell Foundation, a position he has held since its inception in 1990. In 1979, Walter began to work on several projects with Joseph Campbell, who subsequently named him editorial director of his Historical Atlas of World Mythology. Following Campbell's death in 1987, he served as literary executor of Campbell's estate, completing Volumes I and II of the Atlas and supervising its posthumous publication. He continues to oversee the publication of Campbell's oeuvre, including the video series Joseph Campbell's Mythos and the Joseph Campbell Audio Collection. Prior to his work in publishing, Walter was a founding faculty fellow at California Institute of the Arts, lectured widely on experiential education, and pursued a professional theater career, working for a decade as a director, production manager and playwright. Walter was a founding trustee of United Religions Initiative (URI) and has served that organization as treasurer and as a member of its Global Council.

Carran Waterfield is a performer, founder and artistic director of the Triangle Theatre Company in Coventry, England. Waterfield has an international reputation for her intuitive, provocative and physical style of performance. Watch for her production of Godiva, a play on the myth of an extraordinary and influential medieval woman.

Terri Windling is a writer, folklorist and consulting editor for Tor Books. She is best known for her editorial work in the field of fantasy literature, where she has long been a passionate advocate of mythic fiction. She has published over 40 books, including The Wood Wife, The Winter Child (a picture book with artist Wendy Froud), the six-volume Snow White, Blood Red series and The Armless Maiden (literary fairy tales addressing the subject of child abuse)—as well as short stories, children' s fiction and the annual Year's Best Fantasy and Horror volumes (with horror editor Ellen Datlow). Her essays on myth, fairy tales and art have appeared in Realms of Fantasy, Mirror, Mirror on the Wall: Women Writers Explore Their Favorite Fairy Tales (Expanded Edition), Meditations on Middle-Earth, and Fées. She has won six World Fantasy Awards and the 1997 Mythopoeic Award for Novel of the Year. Windling creates "folkloric" paintings, inspired by myth, fairy tales and women' s history, which have been exhibited in galleries and museums in the U.S. and abroad. In 1987, Windling created the Endicott Studio, and in 2001, she co-created Endicott West (an arts retreat in Arizona) with Ellen Kushner and Delia Sherman. She is a founding member of the Interstitial Arts Foundation.
